

We Are All Sacred Prevent Sexual Violence

As boys and then men, we are taught to never show our vulnerability. This is not our way. To be vulnerable is to be in relationship with the land, with others, and with ourselves. It is in this space that allows us to grow emotionally, mentally, and spiritually. We must show our young men that this space and this growth is a part of who we are as Indigenous men!

I feel I have a story to share. A story that others can relate to. My story represents what obstacles had to be overcome, and the trials and tribulations that life brings. A story that does not end with hate, but an appreciation from adversity and that together we can all achieve great things. A story that others can learn from, and learn empathy for others. Everyone has a story, a story of struggle, triumph, love and achievement. Make your story a good one.

Equality. Equality. Equality. Your voice is important, use it. It's important for us to speak up for Equality Rights for our Youth, our Elders and ourselves. Learn about Two Spirit History, learn about LGBTQ History. It is beautiful and sacred. We need to speak out to ensure freedom and safety for all. This is more than just a rainbow flag, it a symbol of pride and resilience. A symbol of what has been accomplished over the years for anti-violence, suicide prevention and freedom. It's also a symbol on how much farther we need to go for Equality.

Please hold your head up high with dignity. One of the most important things that I have learned over the years was to love myself. There are plenty of people out there that will try to push you down to make you feel lesser than. Disregard them, and stand for what is right. Please remember that you are here for a reason, that you are someone special and important. So, walk with dignity, grace and a respect for others. Our youth may be watching to see where you may lead them.

To resist is to Indigenize our learning and also the ways we teach.

To resist is to
interrupt patriarchy,
sexism, and acts of violence around us.

To resist is to undo
colonial influence and restore our roles in the Circle.

To resist is to stay
present, do our work,
and share our Gifts
as menfolk.

Join a group. Run for office. Always RESIST!

Healthy relationships happen when we put in the work. Talk with each other. Be tender and honest. Take responsibility and do your part. Mutual respect and communication create a pathway of trust and balance. Bring your whole Being. It's worth it.
